Agena Is Failure; Delays Gemini 9 Shot 3 Weeks

By Howard Benedict

CAPE KENNEDY (AP)—An Atlas rocket speeding an Agena satellite toward orbit tumbled out of control and ruined the Gemini 9 mission Tuesday, forcing a three-week delay in the rendezvous and space walk of its astronauts.

"Oh shucks," said Command Pilot Thomas Stafford when he was told that his Agena target has failed to orbit.

Eugene Cernan, 32-year-old, rookie astronaut who was to take man's longest space walk, 2½ hours, and become a human satellite, said, "Oh no, oh no, oh no."

An informed source said that data indicated that one of three Atlas engines swiveled over to one side and started the 104-foot Atlas-Agena tumbling in space minutes after it lifted off the pad at 10:15 a.m. EDT.

The rocket began tumbling back toward earth and landed 160 miles from Cape Kennedy, just east of Grand Bahama island.

For Stafford it was his third disappointment atop a Titan rocket. Last Oct. 25, he and Navy Capt. Walter Schirra were in Gemini 6 waiting to go into orbit when another Agena failed. In December he was back atop the Titan when the Titan shut down prematurely.

Stafford and Cernan are expected to return to Houston later this week to continue training for the Gemini 9 flight.

Stafford said, "You can't get your hopes up until that Agena gets across the States." He referred to the fact that the Titan 2 would be launched after the Agena had gone around the globe once and was again over Cape Kennedy.

During their three days in space, they were to have practiced several rendezvous and docking techniques with the Agena, attempted space rescue missions, fired the Agena engines to change orbits, and Cernan was to have made a record two-hour-25-minute space walk.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday that if Agena failed to achieve orbit, Stafford and Cernan would have to wait at least two weeks until an alternate satellite could be placed on the launch pad.

However, Dr. George Mueller, director of the Gemini program, said at a press conference after the Agena failure that it would take at least three weeks to ready the alternate.

Farm Bureau And Sclero In Argument

By George Kruse

Linn County Supervisor Anthony Sclero Tuesday became involved in an argument with three representatives of the Linn county Farm Bureau on the issue of extension of rural library service to unincorporated areas in the county.

The argument started when J. W. Grummer, president of the Farm Bureau, asked the board to give him the number of signatures the Farm Bureau would have to get to bring the issue of rural library service to the voters in the fall election.

Grummer said the Farm Bureau had earlier asked County Auditor Charles Werner for the exact figure. Werner answered in a letter written April 26, that it was impossible.

Werner wrote that there was no way to distinguish the people who voted in the unincorporated and incorporated areas outside of Cedar Rapids and Marion in the last gubernatorial election in 1964.

No Distinction

He said that this was because the registration did not distinguish between the two areas.

Iowa law states that to bring such an issue to a vote signatures of 25 percent of all the people in unincorporated areas who voted in the last gubernatorial election must be collected.

Sclero, speaking for the board, said "The board has no legal authority to tell you."

Sclero went on to say that only the auditor could give them a figure. He added that

Takeoff Halted By Engine Blast; No One Injured

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An explosion wracked an onboard engine of a Continental Airlines jet and hurled debris into the wing and fuselage early Tuesday forcing the pilot to abort a takeoff for Denver.

The 22 passengers and seven crew members fled the aircraft moments later. There were no injuries.

The four-engine Boeing 720-B had started its takeoff run when the explosion occurred.

Deputy Fire Chief John Wass said fire broke out in the engine after the explosion and spread to the inboard engine. He said debris punctured the wing and outer skin of the fuselage, but none entered the passenger compartment.

The pilot, Capt. Ray Jehlik, referred to the explosion as a "loud report". He cut the power to the engines, braked and turned the aircraft onto a taxiway. The passengers and crew were evacuated by emergency chutes.

The airport was closed from shortly after 2 until 5:30 a.m., while the debris and fuel that had leaked from a wing tank were cleared from the runway.

The flight originated in Chicago and was bound for Los Angeles with stops in Kansas City and Denver. Cause of the engine explosion was unknown.

Services for Slain Grocer Wednesday

Special to The Gazette

IOWA CITY—Investigation of the slaying of an Iowa City grocer by a woman bandit intensified Thursday as Johnson county sheriff's officers and bureau of criminal investigation agents entered the case.

Meanwhile, funeral services for Ronald Lipsius, 30, of Iowa City were set for Wednesday at 9 a.m. in St. Mary's church here. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

The Rosary was to be recited Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Beckman-Buthers funeral home.

Lipsius was slain Monday morning as he chased a woman bandit into the street from his Clover Farm food market at 812 South Summit street.

Survivors include his wife, Rose Marie; three children, Richard, Daniel and Susan; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lipsius of Williamsburg; two brothers, Robert of Iowa City and Gerald of Cedar Rapids; and two sisters, Joyce Leneghan of Sigourney and Donna Porter of Marshallfield, Wis.

His wife is expecting their fourth child.

In later developments, Iowa City police Tuesday crossed off their original belief that the persons involved in the robbery.

U.S. Will Support Strong Role by Military in Saigon

By Spencer Davis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration leaders, after two days of intensive consultations on the Vietnam crisis, have agreed to support a strong Vietnamese military role in any future Saigon government.

But, high officials made clear Monday this decision does not indicate a personal endorsement of Premier Ky.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, his round of talks over, left Tuesday for his Saigon post. He will stop enroute to confer in Seoul with Korean President Park Chung Hee.

A high official explained the administration decision to support a military regime in Saigon this way:

It is necessary to build a nation and fight a war at the same time. The current appraisal here is that the political disturbances will fall short of civil war.

Evolution—but not stability—will be predominant in the weeks and months ahead. The army is the only nation-building influence in a country still divided among conflicting groups and without any political parties with a power base.

The U.S. recognizes Ky as head of the established government but this does not mean he would be given U.S. support over someone else in an election.

There is still considerable anger in Washington as a result of Ky's surprise weekend move.

It is felt here that he decided he couldn't tolerate a situation where his government had no control over one of its most important military and political areas. But the wisdom of taking the action he did in seizing Da Nang without U.S. consultation is questioned.

Many experts here contend that Ky's action will do more harm than good by stimulating the Buddhists to all-out opposition. Others say it will give him an opportunity to re-establish law and order before elections are held in mid-September for a constitution-making body.

Hick View

It is agreed by President Johnson's advisers that North Vietnam is doing everything it can to encourage divisions and dissensions in the south. At present, it is possible to cause more trouble for the Americans by political means than by military action, Hanoi reportedly believes.

Lodge and his wife were honored Monday night at a dinner party given by Johnson "as an expression of gratitude," a White House spokesman said.

Senator Hickenlooper (Iowa), ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations committee, voiced belief that new Vietnam hearings are needed—but went to sleep further.

Hearings are not only needed, he said, "they are needed very soon."

Viet Man, Helicopter Swap Shots

By Richard Growald

SAIGON (UPI)—An American helicopter crewman Tuesday shot and killed a South Vietnamese lieutenant who opened fire with a pistol on a chopper flying U.S. and Vietnamese generals from Hue. Buddhists reacted angrily.

Those aboard the helicopter included Major Gen. Huynh Van Cao, new commander of the First corps, and Brig. Gen. Jonas Platt of Northfield, Vt., chief of staff of the Third marine amphibious force. All aboard escaped injury, although one of the lieutenant's shots hit the aircraft.

Cao had flown to the rebel city to try to ease the anti-government feeling there, despite warnings from Brig. Gen. Phan Xuan Nhu, commander of the rebel-ridden Vietnamese First division, and Thich Tri Quang, Buddhist leader, to stay away.

Howling Mob

As Cao left after his unsuccessful mission — Nhu refused to see him — the lieutenant fired two shots from a distance of 10 yards while a howling mob of 100 anti-government students tried to rush the helicopter.

Door Gunner Sp/4 James E. Fulton fired his machine gun, killing the lieutenant and wounding six Vietnamese, two seriously.

The incident injected a grave new note. Americans had tried to stay out of the crisis touched off when Premier Ky sent troops Sunday to occupy key points in rebellious Da Nang.

In Saigon, Buddhist monks emphasized that Cao was traveling in a U.S. helicopter and that an American killed the lieutenant who tried to assassinate him. They accused "U.S. generals" of helping Ky against the rebellion in the northern provinces.

Americans Warned

Hue radio, broadcasting in English, warned all Americans to stay off the streets. Student broadcasters said they bore the Americans no enmity but exposure was not safe.

A strike paralyzed Da Nang and almost totally shut down the port where many American supplies arrive.

Saigon's labor unions ended a strike that curtailed port operations and most public transportation after the government relieved a district police chief under attack by union leaders.

Cavalry Battle

U.S. air cavalrymen hurled heavy reinforcements against 350 or more North Vietnamese regulars in the central highlands Tuesday and reported the communists were on the run.

Helicopters airlifted three battalions of cavalry reinforcements to the battle scene 250 miles northeast of Saigon.

After brisk fighting throughout the day — the second day of the engagement — reports from First air cavalry division headquarters said the enemy was retreating at nightfall.

Wind, Flash Flood Follow Heavy Rains

Iowa News—

Flash floods and high winds plagued parts of Eastern Iowa early Tuesday in the wake of recent heavy rains.

Flooding waters of Coal creek swirled 4 to 5 feet deep through parts of What Cheer's business district during the early morning while waters from German creek closed highway 92, four miles east of Sigourney.

High Winds

In northeast Iowa, high winds raged through an area from Oelwein to Dubuque about 7 a.m., downing power lines and chief of staff of the Third marine amphibious force. All aboard escaped injury, although one of the lieutenant's shots hit the aircraft.

The flood waters in What Cheer were receding shortly before noon Tuesday, but not before they flooded basements and caused washouts in the area of Coal creek.

Heavy rain during the night was blamed for the flash flood. The water came up to the tops of several cars parked along the streets in the low-lying area.

A washout created a large hole near the Dairy-Sweet building and the waters washed out gas pumps at the Vern Anderson service station. Places pumping water out of basements Tuesday morning included the Wymore furniture store, Mobile station, Colliers grocery, city hall and Wake's feed store, plus several residences. The city park was still under water at noon Tuesday.

Rowboats were in use in the business district Tuesday morning as owners rowed to their stores.

German Creek

German creek, which had flooded highway 92 and blocked traffic Tuesday morning, was still rising shortly before noon. The area is near the twin bridges and the roadway is scheduled to be rebuilt and made higher in the near future to prevent such flooding.

Heavy rains also soaked Eastern Iowa during the night and early morning.

Marengo received .6 of an inch of rain during the night to bring that city's total to 4.24 inches since May 11.

North English and Brooklyn reported more than an inch of rain. In other areas, Pella recorded 2.31 inches and Knoxville 2.23 inches.

Cedar Rapids received .32 of an inch of rain through Tuesday morning when skies partially cleared and the sun broke through. The 2 p.m. temperature in the city was 72 degrees following an overnight low of 58 and a high Monday of 75 degrees.

Forecasters said Iowa is expected to cool off with lows Tuesday night in the 40s and highs Wednesday not above the 60s.

Trap Being Closed on Kidnaper

SHADE GAP Pa. (UPI)—An FBI agent was shot and killed Tuesday by a sniper believed to be the man who last Wednesday kidnaped 17-year-old Peggy Ann Bradnick near this mountain hamlet, state police reported.

The FBI identified the victim as Terry Anderson, an agent from the Harrisburg office of the FBI, one of the searchers assigned to the area.

FBI Agent Ian D. MacLennan said the sniper, believed to be the "mysterious masked mountain man," was under surveillance in an area known as Burnt Cabin in Fulton county about 10 miles south of Shade Gap in the rugged Tuscarora mountains.

"We are marshalling forces to go up there," MacLennan said. He said state police were "slowly and methodically" surrounding the Burnt Cabin area. Most were armed with machine guns and other heavy weapons.

Girl with Him

The sniper later retreated to the top of a rugged mountain with the girl.

State police and FBI agents, armed with machine guns and other heavy arms, surrounded Neelyton mountain where he took refuge.

Police said Peggy Ann appeared unharmed. But they said they faced the critical question of whether to storm the peak and risk the girl's life, or play a waiting game with the sniper.

At mid-morning, shortly after the shooting, the state police radio network carried this report:

"All available men are to go to Shade Gap as soon as possible armed with machine guns."

A five-day, foot-by-foot search of a wooded Tuscarora valley had failed to turn up a clue of the girl, a high school student, or her abductor.

Exhaustive Search

Agents and state troopers, assisted by helicopters and bloodhounds, continued their investigation in the area Monday. Up to 600 men — police, national guardsmen and volunteers — had searched the wild terrain of this central Pennsylvania area since Wednesday.

House Unit Pins Label Of Caesar on McNamara

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The house armed services committee Tuesday hung a qualified "Caesar" label on Robert McNamara. It said many people are beginning to think the country would fare better with a less vigorous defense secretary.

"The situation is not that bad," the committee said in the latest of a series of critical blasts at McNamara, "and it is the intention of the committee that through its hearings and reports the glare of publicity will prevent it from ever becoming that bad."

Army and Air Force Say Budgets Too Low

WASHINGTON (AP)—The air force says it will be unable to meet any emergencies outside Vietnam under its proposed budget for fiscal 1967. And the army says it may not have enough funds to carry out its operations the rest of this fiscal year.

Both services aired their money complaints to house subcommittees two months ago. Their testimony was released separately Tuesday.

Major Gen. Durward Crow, comptroller of the air force, told the house defense appropriations subcommittee March 16 that budget cuts imposed by Defense Secretary McNamara and the bureau of the budget will permit 100 percent performance in Vietnam, but not much elsewhere.

The general also said the cuts would mean the reduction of the airborne alert, which keeps a number of B-52s aloft carrying nuclear weapons at all times.

Crow's testimony contains this exchange with Rep. Sikes (D-Fla.):

Q. Does this budget give you any flexibility in case of additional activities in Southeast Asia, or other worldwide commitments that may arise?

A. No, sir; it does not.

Q. That is a matter that would throw your plans completely out of kilter, I guess. Is that right?

A. If additional deployments were required elsewhere in the world, that involved additional combat operations, we could not fund them with this budget.

Crow said the air force originally asked for $5.44 billion last October when budget estimates were submitted. The defense department and budget bureau lopped off $566 million, but restored $67.4 million after the air force complained. This left the total requested by President Johnson at $4.92 billion, he said.

Among the items cut over the air force's protest, Crow said, was the airborne alert.

On the army side of the ledger, Major Gen. B. F. Taylor, director of the army's budget, told a house appropriations subcommittee he did not think both the regular and supplemental 1966 appropriations of more than $4.5 billion would be enough to carry army operation and maintenance until June 30, end of the 1966 fiscal year.

Taylor said he may have to ask McNamara for additional funds the defense secretary is authorized to transfer.

Taylor's comments came as he testified March 7 on the 1967 army maintenance and operation budget request of more than $5 billion, some $580 million above last year's spending.

He said the 1966 budget was $3.5 billion, with a supplemental appropriation of more than $1 billion.

The general also said the money requested for operation and maintenance in fiscal 1967 represented a "tight" budget and one in which "we have no funds . . . to meet contingencies which were not foreseen at the time the budget was formulated."

Moyers Hurt in Tumble On White House Stairs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Bill Moyers, presidential press secretary, fell down stairs at the White House late Monday and was taken to Bethesda naval hospital for observation. He was reported "doing fine" Tuesday.

One unconfirmed report said the 32-year-old presidential aide suffered a mild concussion.

A White House spokesman said Moyers slipped on the carpeted stairs while walking from the main floor of the Executive Mansion to the basement office of Robert Kintner, special presidential assistant.

The carpeting on the stairs has some frays but it was not known if this caused Moyers to trip.

Shaken up by the fall, Moyers lay for a while on a couch in the office of another White House assistant, Douglas Carter, at the foot of the stairs.

A White House physician, Navy Capt. Lay Fox, later suggested that it might be a good idea for Moyers to go to Bethesda for the night. So he entered at 9 p.m. slaying escaped in a blue-green car.

Police said they now have no idea what kind of car, if any, was involved.

An Iowa City woman and her son witnessed the shooting as they drove by the scene.

The witnesses said the woman was about 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighed about 170 to 175 pounds and was between 19 and 24 years old. She wore horn-rimmed glasses, a head scarf and blue jeans.

Her companion was described as 5 feet, 11 inches tall, 175 pounds and wearing brown trousers.

There were no witnesses to the actual holdup, about 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Chased Woman

Lipsius apparently ran after the woman as she left his store. She turned once on Summit street and fired a shot from a small caliber revolver. The shot missed. She then turned and ran down Sheridan avenue and as Lipsius drew close to her, turned and fired twice more. Lipsius fell mortally wounded.

The man involved in the case apparently ran from the store about the same time as Lipsius, running down the street with them and disappearing with the woman.

Mrs. Keith White, clerk at Lipsius' store, was due at work at 9 a.m. When she walked past the corner of Sheridan and Summit on her way to work, she said she saw a body down the block and wondered who it was.

She said the meal slicing machine in the store was running. She estimated about $50 in bills was missing from the cash register, but the coins had not been taken.

Employers Asked To Release Men For Camp Duty

Business and industrial leaders in Iowa are again being asked to support the summer training military leave program for Iowa National guardsmen.

Each summer, guardsmen receive two weeks of intensified training, employing skills learned during the rest of the year.

Guard officials said that units are geared to operate as a team. If some men are not at camp, they said, the efficiency of the team is greatly impaired.

"The Iowa Guard realized and appreciates the sacrifices employers make when they let men go to camp, but field training is indispensable," Guard officials said.

Francis M. Burr, 18, 4919 Center Point road NE, enlisted in the marines and was sent to San Diego for recruit training.

Mrs. Larry Wittmer, 2647 Fruiland boulevard SW, and Mrs. Dennis Jones, 1647 B avenue NE, left Tuesday for Stuttgart, Germany to join their husbands, both in the army.

Crossing Work By Cooperating Crews Continues

Using a new machine designed and built by city employees, work crews Monday resumed the repair project at Cedar Rapids' downtown rail crossings.

Donald Canney, street commissioner, said workmen from the Rock Island and North Western lines, along with city personnel, worked Tuesday at First avenue and Fourth street E.

Weather conditions permitting, the crews will move on to Second and Third avenue crossings this week, said Canney.

The new machine is a mobile heating unit capable of heating asphalt into a workable state. A modified end-loader machine with a blade is used along with the heating machine to scrape away excess asphalt. The process eliminates need for breaking up the cold asphalt.

Canney met with Rock Island officials Monday to discuss future work. The railroad will cooperate with the city in making improvements to the crossing at Twelfth avenue and Fourth street soon. Canney said he hopes that an agreement can be made for similar improvements at the Eighth avenue crossing.

Terry Dean Allen, 27, of 411 Sixth street SE, received three 30-day suspended jail sentences Monday on three traffic charges resulting from a hit-run accident early last Friday.

Allen appeared before Municipal Judge Loren Hullinger, Jr., on charges of leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, failing to make an accident report and driving without a license.

Police said Allen was the driver of a car which hit a parked car in the 300 block of Eighth avenue SW last Friday at about 1 a.m.

They said both Allen and a passenger, Oliver Schultz, 26, of 603 Twelfth street SE, suffered lip lacerations in the mishap.

After Allen was given the suspended terms, he was taken known.

Slain Grocer's Advice: 'Let Them Have Money'

"IF ANYONE ever comes for the money, let them have it. That's what I'd do." That was the advice Mrs. Keith White (left) said her boss, Ronald Lipsius, 30, of Iowa City had often given her. Lipsius was slain early Monday by a woman bandit as he chased her around the block from his store. Mrs. White, 35, was due at the store at 9 a.m. Monday. When she walked past the corner of Sheridan and Summit streets on her way to work she saw a body down the block and wondered who it was. She didn't find out about the shooting, which took place shortly after 8:30 a.m., until she got to the store. Mrs. Jacob Wegmuller (right) lives next door and owns the store property. She heard some noise Monday morning and going to a window saw Lipsius fall mortally wounded.

ARROWS MARK the route Ronald Lipsius, 30, of Iowa City took in chasing a woman bandit from his store about 8:30 a.m. Monday. The woman fired one shot at him in front of the store, then two more after he went around the corner onto Sheridan street. Mrs. Jacob Wegmuller, who lives in the house at left, went to the window that fronts on Sheridan street and saw Lipsius fall mortally wounded, but didn't know immediately who it was. A woman driving her son to school said Lipsius was chasing a chunky woman while another man seemed to be running after both of them. In the store, a meat cutting machine was running and the cash register was empty. Store Clerk Mrs. Keith White estimated $50 was missing. The woman bandit and the other man, apparently her companion, were still being sought Tuesday morning.

U. of I.'s Oldest Living Graduate 100 Years Old

IOWA CITY—Among the congratulatory messages received by Dr. Inez C. Philbrick on her 100th birthday anniversary Saturday was one that said, "We are proud of you and wish for you an abundance of peace and satisfaction."

This greeting to the Riverside, Calif., woman came from the University of Iowa, its president, students, faculty and alumni, who recognize Dr. Philbrick not only as the oldest alumni in year of graduation, but also as the daughter of the university's first professor of engineering, Philletus H. Philbrick, a Wisconsin veteran of the Civil war before he came to Iowa.

Two Degrees

Dr. Philbrick earned a bachelor of science at the University in 1886 and three years later she received the master of arts degree here. She then went to the Women's Medical college of Philadelphia where she earned the medical degree in 1891. She was born in Tafton (now Bloomington), Wis.

An early crusader for women's suffrage, Dr. Philbrick has much to reflect on from 100 years of life, and those who know her today at the Hillhaven Convalescent hospital say she has a keen mind with which to remember.

Among the experiences of a remarkable lifetime of human service, Dr. Philbrick recalls 57 years of medical practice which she began in Lincoln, Neb., in 1893. With an extensive obstetrics practice to attend, Dr. Philbrick often harnessed up horse and buggy for night calls into the countryside around Lincoln.

The U. of I. graduate recorded the births of more than 2,000 babies. Among these were Theodore Sorenson, former special counsel to President Kennedy, and Sorensen's three brothers and one sister.

Many Births

Another person whose birth was attended by Dr. Philbrick is Robert Lasch, editor of the editorial page of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a 1966 winner of a Pulitzer Prize for distinguished editorial writing, and the father of a current U. of I. professor of history, Christopher Lasch.

Her life spanning a century of incredible growth and change in the world, Dr. Philbrick has kept pace with the times and at 97 took her first airplane ride from Dayton, Ohio, to Riverside, Calif., where she moved in 1963 with her sister and nephew. The nephew, Francis P. Locke, is an editorial writer with the Riverside Press-Enterprise.

Dr. Philbrick even counts the famous North Dakota blizzard of 1888 among her experiences. She taught school at Fargo for nearly two years between the bachelor's and master's degrees at Iowa, and was caught in the great storm.

Bannisters Ask Denial of Child Case Rehearing

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa supreme court, still pondering whether to grant a rehearing in the Mark Painter custody case, had before it Tuesday a request from the boy's grandparents that it stick to its original decision.

In a motion filed Monday the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Bannister of Ames, said the supreme court was "clearly right" in giving custody of 8-year-old Mark to them instead of to his father, Harold W. Painter of Walnut Creek, Calif. Painter, backed by the Iowa Civil Liberties Union and the state of California, has asked the court for a rehearing of the case in which it overturned a Story county district court ruling that he should have custody of his son.

The supreme court has not said whether it will grant a rehearing. Painter has said he will appeal to the U.S. supreme court if he loses again in the Iowa court.

The Iowa supreme court stirred national controversy last February when it announced its

Molten Metal Spills, Two Workers Killed

IOWA CITY (AP)—Two Waterloo men died Monday night of burns received in an industrial accident.

Gerald Sluebenrauch, 23, and Myron Funnaker, 44, died at University hospitals in Iowa City. They suffered burns over 90 percent of their bodies Monday while working in the foundry section of the John Deere Tractor Works in Waterloo.

Plant officials said Sluebenrauch tripped over a lever controlling a vat of molten metal. As the molten metal spilled over Sluebenrauch, Funnaker went to his assistance and also was severely burned.

The metal normally is heated to a temperature of about 2,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

Rath Hopes To Reduce Losses Of $4.9 Million

WATERLOO — Rath Packing Co. of Waterloo has embarked on a major plan to redeploy its resources in the direction of greater emphasis on processed product lines, the chairman and president, William Cameron, said in a semi-annual report mailed to stockholders Monday.

An acute shortage of hogs and the abnormal market conditions prevailing in the first half of the fiscal year resulted in a loss from operations of $3,002,079 for the Rath Packing Co. A life accounting charge against income, typical at mid-year when inventories are at relatively high levels, adds $1,905,906, for a net loss of $4,907,985, in the 26 weeks ended April 2, 1966, he reported.

Rath had a net loss of $1,581,396 in the first half of 1965 and a $3,106,494 loss for the full 1965 fiscal period. Sales in the first half of 1966 were $154,715,356, up from $126,482,578 reported the same period 1965, reflecting higher price levels which prevailed during the 1966 period.

Tonnage shipped was approximately same as 1965. "Market conditions have now stabilized," Cameron said. "More favorable industry conditions and internal steps we have taken cause me to feel confident that our full year's results will be better than fiscal 1965."

On May 5, 1966, the report continued, Rath gave a contractually required 90-day notice.

File Delaware Audit for 1964

MANCHESTER—The 1964 annual audit of Delaware county has been completed and copies filed with the county and state auditors' offices, Lorne R. Worthington, auditor of state, announced Tuesday.

The audit noted the county failed to make investments of idle cash balances during 1964 and thereby lost potential income from interest. Secondary roads fund expenditures exceeded by $21,118.98 the $761,800 proposed in the budget. Although funds were available to meet such expenses, an amendment to the budget should have been filed and published, the audit said.

Total 1964 tax receipts were $2,785,595.33 of which $1,587,131.60 was collected for taxes levied by school districts. Delinquent 1964 taxes at the end of the year were $16,464.74, or six-tenths of one percent of taxes assessed.

Copies of the audit are available for public inspection at state and county auditors' offices.

German Concerts By Iowa Quartet

IOWA CITY—The Iowa String Quartet, resident ensemble at the University of Iowa, will begin a three-day series of concerts in Berlin, Germany, Tuesday, marking the half-way point on a three-week European concert tour.
