Iran-Iraq war may imperil Gulf oil

Gazette leased wires
Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr ordered the immediate mobilization of Iran's armed forces and reservists Saturday for a war against Iraq. A military communique warned the fighting may spread to the Persian Gulf, where it could imperil the flow of oil to the West.

Tehran Radio, monitored in London by the BBC, said Bani-Sadr had taken personal command of the Iranian armed forces battling Iraqi troops along the western frontier in what it said were "intense" land and air clashes.

Then it interrupted its programing to announce that Bani-Sadr, as commander-in-chief, had ordered the mobilization of all personnel either in the army now or discharged since 1977.

The radio spoke of escalating battles along the frontier and quoted an Iranian military communique as warning the conflict may spread to the Persian Gulf and the Shatt-Al-Arab waterway that links it with the giant Iranian oil refinery at Abadan. Iraq last week claimed sovereignty over the waterway and abrogated a 1975 treaty giving Iran the right to use it.

"Intense fighting, both on land and in the air, is continuing all along the border with Iraq," the radio said, quoting from a communique released by the joint staff of the Iranian armed forces.

"There is a possibility of naval warfare in the Persian Gulf and Arvand Rud (the Iranian name for Shatt Al-Arab) in coming days," it said.

The Iraqi news agency in Baghdad quoted a military spokesman as reporting that Iraqi jets repulsed concentrations of Iranian tanks and armored cars that launched an attack at Saoumar under the cover of artillery fire.

Saoumar is on the Iranian side of the border, about 50 miles from the main frontier crossing point of Qasr e-Shirin, about 80 miles northeast of Baghdad.

The Iraqi military said its warplanes inflicted some damage on the attackers. Iran warned Friday of possible sea battles around the Shatt Al-Arab estuary, a narrow strip of water at the northwestern head of the Persian Gulf, but it was the first time it spoke of spreading the conflict to other parts of the Gulf.

In Beirut, Western diplomats said they

President orders 'Stealth' leak probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has ordered the Justice Department and the FBI to find out who leaked existence of the super-secret "Stealth" warplane technology, the chairman of a congressional panel revealed Saturday.

In a letter to the House armed services investigations subcommittee,

Carter also denied once more that he had any part in disclosure of the "Stealth" technology, aimed at making American aircraft invisible to enemy radar.

The letter was released by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee.

Carter said in the letter — as he had on the campaign trail in Pennsylvania two weeks ago — that he had concurred with Secretary of Defense Harold Brown's decision to publicly confirm the existence of the program on Aug. 22 in the face of news leaks, while keeping details secret.

"I can and do state unequivocally that neither I nor any member of the White House staff, acting under my direction or authorization, have engaged in the leaking of classified information concerning the Stealth program," Carter wrote.

Stratton had written Carter asking him to reply to the allegation of retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, former chief of naval operations, who cited unnamed defense and White House officials as saying that Carter personally decided to leak the program.

Carter's Republican rival, Ronald Reagan, and Reagan's GOP allies, have accused the administration of intentionally leaking information on

Relatives identify slain 17-year-old

CLARENCE — A young woman found murdered near Clarence Wednesday was identified Saturday as Sandra Jo Pittman, 17, of Davenport.

Tim McDonald of the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation told The Gazette the identification was made just after noon Saturday by the girl's father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Max Pittman, 2407 Maplecrest, Bettendorf, and two uncles.

The dead girl's relatives viewed the body at Chapman's Funeral Home in Clarence, where it had been held since being found in a roadside park on Highway 30 a mile west of Clarence at about 8 a.m. Wednesday.

No identification was found with the body, a fact that complicated the investigation.

McDonald said the girl's family inquired into the case after seeing a sketch of the victim published Friday by the Quad City Times, the Davenport newspaper.

Authorities had released the drawing in an effort to learn her identity.

The Pittman girl had not been reported missing to police, McDonald said. It was not until the sketch was published in the newspaper that relatives and friends realized they had not seen the girl since Tuesday.

Sandra Pittman did not live with her parents, McDonald said. She had an apartment in Davenport, did not attend school and was not employed, he said.

McDonald said investigation of the murder would now shift to the Davenport-Bettendorf area, where officers would start at "ground zero," interviewing relatives and friends.

Myrtie "Gram" Shannon

Buses, drivers are all depot pals of 'Gram'

By Mary Burke
Gazette Eastern Iowa reporter

INDEPENDENCE — Almost every Sunday, about 1:30 p.m., there's a little old lady standing along Highway 150 on the northeast side of Independence.

And every Sunday, the Scenic Hawkeye Stages bus rolls in from Decorah, brakes to a stop, waits for the little lady to board, then rolls off to the Union Bus Depot on the other side of town.

It's a short ride, but 75-year-old Myrtie "Gram" Shannon loves to travel. And seeing "Gram" headed to work at the depot-cafe is kind of like watching a queen returning to her realm.

Inside the bus depot, which she operates with her son, Jack, "Gram" makes up schedules and tickets, runs the cash register and talks of "her" bus drivers.

"Bus drivers are her pride and joy," explained Kathy Shannon, one of "Gram's" 36 grandchildren. "She's gotten into simple photography and takes all their pictures. Every time they get a new bus, she has to ride on it."

"Buses are just like old friends when they come in," "Gram" explained simply.

Cedar Rapids youth killed in crash on Highway 30

Kelly Costigan, 17, died early Saturday when his car collided with another vehicle officers said was being driven the wrong way on Highway 30.

Costigan, 321 Peace Ave. NW, was eastbound on Highway 30 near C Street SW when his car collided head-on with a van driven by Katherine C. Davis, 21, of 1500 D Ave. NE. The accident occurred shortly before 5 a.m.

Linn Sheriff's deputies and Cedar Rapids Police responded, as did the Cedar Rapids Fire Department and Area Ambulance Service.

Davis and a passenger, Alan R. Clark, 28, also of 1500 D Ave. NE, were both listed in fair condition Saturday evening at St. Luke's Hospital.

Davis told police she had been returning to Cedar Rapids from Lisbon when she fell asleep at the wheel. She told police she didn't know when she crossed over into the oncoming lane of traffic.

Costigan's death was one of three weekend traffic fatalities reported in Iowa as of Saturday evening. In addition, a Dubuque man died of injuries received in an accident on Labor Day.

Albert Lempke, 77, Eagle Grove, died Friday night when his auto was struck broadside by a pickup truck, which police said apparently was involved in a drag race.

Three passengers in Lempke's car were injured, including his 71-year-old wife, Lucille.

The 17-year-old driver of the pickup was treated for bruises and abrasions. Police Saturday were looking for the driver of another vehicle that witnesses said was racing with the truck when the crash occurred.

The state patrol said Keith Jensen, 21, died when the pickup truck in which he was a passenger collided with a car eight miles north of Fostoria.

And Iowa City police said Mark A. Ritchie, 19, Dubuque, died Saturday morning of injuries he received on Labor Day, when his motorcycle collided with an auto in Iowa City.

Missing Shellsburg woman, 92, found safe

A 92-year-old woman, Louise Spurgeon of rural Shellsburg, was found alive Saturday afternoon in a corn field near her home after having been lost for nearly 30 hours.

The woman, with her dog beside her, was found about 4:30. She was taken to Mercy Hospital by the Palo ambulance and reported in stable condition Saturday night.

Mrs. Spurgeon, according to friends, wandered away from her home Friday morning. Relatives and neighbors began looking for her about 11 a.m., and later in the day law enforcement officials were called into the search.

Some feared the elderly woman may have fallen into Pleasant Creek Lake, which is near her home. However, friends said she became lost, and when unable to find her way out of the field, laid down and slept. Thundershowers rolled across the area early Saturday, and searchers said she was coated with mud.

Authorities used bloodhounds and a helicopter in the search Friday night, but retired about 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

Linn Sheriff's deputies, aided by fire department personnel from Palo, Center Point and Hiawatha, continued the search Saturday morning. The woman was conscious when they found her.

believed the Iraqi-Iranian border fighting could escalate into full-scale war following Iraq's declaration of sovereignty over Shatt Al-Arab.

In Kuwait, the newspaper Al Anbaa quoted diplomatic sources as saying they feared "Iran might resort to blocking the Hormuz Strait in retaliation."

The Straits of Hormuz is the narrow bottleneck at the southeastern mouth of the Persian Gulf. It is the sole passage between the oil ports of the Gulf and the Arabian Sea and more than 100 tankers pass through it daily to take OPEC's oil to the West.

If the Iranians "touch that strait they will inevitably escalate their border dispute with Iraq and trigger a real war in the region," Al Anbaa said.

For the 52 American hostages, it was day 322 in captivity and their militant captors said a delegation of Iranian parliament members would visit the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran Monday.

—Body—

McDonald and Cedar County Sheriff Keith Whitlach were interviewing acquaintances of the girl in the Davenport area Saturday night. But McDonald said they had not been able to establish any details that might lead to an arrest. He said it was not known whether the girl had left the Quad Cities area in someone else's company.

He said officers were continuing to follow up on calls received from the public following release of the sketch and an appeal for information from anyone who might have seen the girl in the hours before she was killed.

The cause of death was listed as a blow to the head with a blunt object. Officers speculated that the girl was killed somewhere else and the body dumped later at the roadside park.

Death was placed at some time between midnight and 7 a.m. Wednesday.

When found, the body was clad in yellow slacks and a white blouse, which was unbuttoned. McDonald said the blouse was later removed for tests.

He said it had not yet been established whether the girl had been sexually assaulted.

Urbana hunter shot accidentally

An Urbana man, Thomas Caltvedt, was in fair condition at St. Luke's Hospital late Saturday after an accidental shooting earlier in the day near Central City.

Caltvedt, 19, was hunting in a densely wooded area east of Central City at about 8:30 a.m. with Scott Walters, 17, also of Urbana, according to Linn Sheriff's reports. Walters slipped in muddy undergrowth, and his 20-gauge shotgun discharged accidentally, according to sheriff's reports. The blast caught Caltvedt in the upper back thigh.

Linn Sheriff's Rescue and Central City Ambulance responded, but the transport to St. Luke's Hospital was made by helicopter ambulance, Life Guard I.

HOW DOES ONE ADJUST TO WIDOWHOOD?
There are many excellent texts and reference books relating to the adjustments which surviving widows and widowers must make. Most are not overly technical and may help you understand better the transitional stages of widowhood. These books help explain how to facilitate healthy mental and physical adjustments after the loss of a loved one.

Here are just a few of them:
Parents Without Partners — J. Egleson
Explaining Death to Children — E. Grollman
For the Living — Edgar Jackson
When Death Takes a Father — G. Koolman
On Death and Dying — E. Kubler-Ross
"The Widow-to-Widow program" — Mental Hygiene Magazine, Volume 53, No. 3, 1969
"When your wife is a widow" — Changing Times Magazine, June, 1971

the technology to deflect criticism of Carter's defense policies.

Zumwalt, a supporter of Reagan, testified on Capitol Hill recently that officials, whom he would not identify, told him that the president decided to leak the program as part of his re-election campaign.

Zumwalt, Reagan and other critics have charged that Brown's official confirmation of the news leaks gave the Soviets a boost in developing radar to overcome the new U.S. technology.

Reagan maintained that since the Stealth technology would not be applicable to U.S. aircraft until the 1990s, the administration had effectively given the Soviets "a 10-year head start" in developing a counter for it.

"I share your committee's dismay at the rash of unauthorized disclosures of national security information that has recently occurred," Carter said in the letter.

"For that reason I have directed the attorney general with the assistance of the FBI to take over the investigation of the leaks to The Washington Post, Aviation Week and Space Technology and ABC," Carter's letter said.
