Slain Bettendorf teen was to attend a party

BETTENDORF (AP) — A 17-year-old Bettendorf girl who was killed last week was planning to attend a party the night she disappeared, her grandmother said.

Lona Pittman of Buffalo said she didn't know whether Sandra Jo Pittman — whose body was identified Saturday — ever arrived at the party.

Cedar County Sheriff Keith Whitlatch, whose department is working on the case along with the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation, said he had no comment about the party.

The body of Miss Pittman was discovered Wednesday morning in a small roadside park along U.S. Highway 30 outside Clarence. Authorities said she died early Wednesday or late Tuesday.

An autopsy indicated that she had been beaten and possibly strangled, but had not been sexually assaulted.

Her body was identified by family members Saturday after they saw a drawing of the slaying victim released by authorities, who had worked for three days to identify her.

Whitlatch said investigators are looking into the possibility that Miss Pittman was hitchhiking and was picked up by her assailant. Friends and Miss Pittman's grandmother said the girl did occasionally hitchhike.

Miss Pittman had not lived at home for about two years and had dropped out of Bettendorf High School. She had apparently been staying with her boyfriend at a Davenport apartment until Monday, investigators said.

The couple apparently had a quarrel Monday, friends said, and Miss Pittman sought shelter Monday night at the Catholic Worker House in Davenport. Betsy Keenan, a spokesman for the agency, said Miss Pittman apparently left the Worker House early Tuesday, although she didn't think anyone saw the girl leave the house.

"As far as we know, she was going job hunting. She was looking for about any job she could get," Miss Keenan said.

No protest at Hiss lecture

PELLA (AP) — Alger Hiss, who was accused of passing government secrets to the Soviet Union during the 1930s, was in Iowa today to talk to students at Central College in Pella.

Sponsors of the visit were at first leery of any publicity because of potential protests and delayed announcing the visit until a week ago, but no protest developed.

"I think it's nice to have someone of that prominence coming to Central College and to Pella," said John Mathew, editor of the Pella Chronicle.

Mathew said he had received a couple of telephoned complaints, but most people in the area are more curious about Hiss than anything else and looked forward to an opportunity to see and hear him.

Hiss pretty much dropped out of the news after 1953 when he was paroled from prison. But last week, his name cropped up again when he appeared in court seeking exoneration for his 1950 conviction on perjury charges.

The Hiss affair began in 1948 when Whittaker Chambers, an admitted former courier for the Communist Party and later senior editor of Time Magazine, accused Hiss of passing along government secrets while Hiss worked for the U.S. State Department.

The charge came during hearings before the U.S. House Committee on Un-American Activities. California Rep. Richard M. Nixon was a member of that committee, and in his book, "Six Crises," said his work on the committee was touchy but valuable to his political career.

The hearings were during the "McCarthy Era," which drew its name from Wisconsin's Sen. Joseph McCarthy, who mounted a campaign to root out Communist Party members in public life.
