Michigan man sentenced in killing of lover's spouse

Wife, victim are ex-C.R. residents

By Kym Schuetz

Special to the Gazette

ALLEGAN, Mich. — Fifty-one weeks after he played a role in shooting and killing his lover's husband, a 19-year-old man was sentenced Friday to 25 to 50 years in prison.

Before sentencing Dennis Lee Leonard, 19, for the killing of James Lundgren, Allegan County Circuit Judge George Corsiglia asked Leonard why he would have anything to do with Kimberly Lundgren, his ex-girlfriend whom he agreed to testify against.

"I loved this lady, but I can't say why, your Honor," said

Leonard, who showed no emotion during his sentencing Friday. "I don't know why myself."

Lundgren, formerly of Cedar Rapids, will be sentenced next week in connection with the slaying.

Leonard and Lundgren were charged with the shooting death of her 42-year-old husband, James Lundgren, as he slept July 30, 1993, at the couple's Fillmore Township home.

Leonard, who, according to court records, has the maturity of a 12-year-old, originally admitted shooting Lundgren. Later he said it was actually Kimberly Lundgren who fired the shot after he refused. He pleaded guilty to second-degree murder.

Kimberly Landenberger Lundgren, 33, who also pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, will be sentenced July 28 by Circuit Judge Harry Beach following a hearing on her pre-sentencing report. She claims Leonard was the shooter.

The Lundgrens moved to Michigan from the Cedar Rapids area about eight years ago.

Judge Corsiglia said he believed Leonard was manipulated by the older, more experienced Lundgren, but quickly added, "That doesn't excuse what you did. You had an opportunity to walk away. You didn't do it."

Following the sentencing, Ruth Swick of Marion, James Lundgren's sister, spoke on behalf of the victim's family. "We're pleased, maybe even a little shocked he got that long. All we hope is that Kim gets what she deserves, life (in prison) and nothing less."

During the court appearance, Swick told the judge that while Leonard was "in the clutches" of Kimberly Lundgren, he failed to stop the crime which claimed the life of her 42-year-old brother and robbed the Lundgrens' two young children of both parents.

Nevertheless, Swick said she can accept Leonard's apology because he apparently did not play the lead in planning or carrying out the shooting.

The shooting took place on the eve of what would have been the Lundgren's 12th wedding anniversary.

The shooting came as a surprise to family members, who were not aware of any significant marital problems, said Jamie Lundgren, James Lundgren's 17-year-old daughter, who lives in Toddville.

Kimberly Lundgren's attorney and family members have argued she was a battered wife who chose homicide as her only escape. But police and prosecutors allege the slaying was a clumsy lovers' scheme to get Lundgren out of the way and collect on his $100,000 life insurance policy.

C.R. man who gave baby snuff gets probation

By Dick Hogan

Gazette courts reporter

Dwane Lightfoot of Cedar Rapids has received a deferred judgment after pleading guilty to aggravated misdemeanor child endangerment.

Associate District Judge Michael Newmeister placed Lightfoot on probation until July 11, 1996.

Lightfoot had faced trial on a felony child endangerment charge of giving a harmful substance, tobacco snuff, to an infant but was allowed to plead guilty to the lesser offense.

Lightfoot, 30, of 4032 Wilson Ave. SW, was charged Feb. 3. He told police he meant no harm to the 6-month-old baby he was watching for a friend.

Lightfoot's attorney contended his client was incompetent to stand trial. At a competency hearing, Jack Baker, a psychologist, testified Lightfoot has an IQ of 60 and is illiterate. An IQ of 100 is considered average.

Judge August Honsel ruled in March that Lightfoot was competent to stand trial, but it was unnecessary after the plea bargain was reached.

County board rules out thong bikinis at beach

DAVENPORT (AP) — Park officials say bikini-clad bathers need more than just a Band-Aid fix.

"It's just gone too far," Dan Nagle, director of the Scott County Conservation Board, said about the popularity of thong bathing suits.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution requiring swimmers at county pools and beaches to wear attire that covers "the crack of the buttock."

Nagle said he consulted with the Scott County Attorney's Office on the wording of the resolution. "With some people, you just have to spell it out," he said.

Park employees are making signs warning swimmers about the new rule and will install them within the next few days at the Scott County Park Pool and West Lake Park beach. Anyone wearing a suit that doesn't cover enough will be asked to leave.

Flood donations taken to Georgia

■ CHELSEA — More than $3,000 raised in the Chelsea area over the last 10 days should be delivered to flood-stricken Montezuma, Ga., today. The money is a way for people in Chelsea, which was ravaged by floods last year, to repay Georgia, which is suffering from flooding this year.

Montezuma, Ga., is a community of 4,830 residents in east-central Georgia. It is on the Flint River, which flooded along its entire length.

Chelsea, which is along the Iowa River, received drinking water last year from Rome, Ga., when floodwaters cut off Chelsea's water system.

Originally, Chelsea was raising money to buy drinking water to deliver to Montezuma. But when the city's water system was repaired Chelsea residents decided to donate money to buy the cleaning supplies. As of Friday, $3,240 had been raised.

A group planned to leave Chelsea for Montezuma at 4 p.m. Friday and deliver a check today.

Suspect sought in patrol car theft

■ Law enforcement officers continued last night to seek a man accused of stealing a State Patrol car. Authorities believe they know the identity of the suspect but declined to release his name.

The suspect was stopped about 9:15 a.m. Friday on Highway 218 near Waterloo by Trooper David Nedrow, the State Patrol said. Nedrow believed the suspect gave false information and arrested him. The suspect was handcuffed and placed in the patrol car. Nedrow went to interview two passengers in the suspect's vehicle when the suspect, whose hands were handcuffed behind his back, somehow managed to get behind the wheel and drive away. The car was found later with $1,500 in damage, the patrol said.

The suspect was described as a white male, 6-foot-3, weighing 180 pounds and wearing a T-shirt and blue jeans.

Autopsy shows toddler drowned

■ MASON CITY (AP) — Preliminary autopsy results cite drowning as the cause of death of 20-month-old John Snyder Jr., who was found in a creek near downtown Mason City Thursday. An official report will not be available until next week, the State Medical Examiner's Office said. It was ruled Friday that the boy drowned, but it has not been determined if there were contributing factors. The boy was reported missing Wednesday morning by his father, who told police he last saw his son Tuesday night when he put him to bed.
