S. VIETS FORM 'SUICIDE LINE' AT KHE SANH

'No Retreat' From Shallow Trenches

Leased Wire to The Register
KHE SANH, SOUTH VIETNAM — A crack South Vietnamese Ranger battalion Sunday dug in after being airlifted here Saturday to form what amounted to a "suicide line" in front of this threatened U.S. Marine base.

Marine spokesmen here expected a major North Vietnamese assault after a 36-hour Allied truce to mark the Vietnamese Lunar New Year began at 6 p.m. Vietnam time today (4 a.m. Iowa time).

Outside Defenses
The 750-man government unit located its trenches about 300 yards east of this remote Marine camp in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, just outside its strong defenses.

Meanwhile, Marines ran into a force of North Vietnamese dug in just a mile from Khe Sanh and claimed killing 151 of them in a 2 1/2-hour battle. The U.S. Command reported 19 Marines were killed and 90 wounded.

The Leathernecks were patrolling Highway 9, the only road link between Khe Sanh and other main outposts below the demilitarized zone (DMZ). As three companies of the 4th Marine Regiment approached the Camp Carroll artillery base, the Communists opened fire.

U.S. fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships later helped break up the North Vietnamese attack.

The Rangers, who arrived aboard helicopters and transport aircraft, are to help some 5,000 Marines against an estimated 20,000 North Vietnamese troops in the area.

The Rangers were expected to bear the brunt of any attack from the east. Their shallow trenches are protected only by rolls of "razor-wire"—a new wire defense studded with sharp steel hooks instead of barbs, and hand-detonated mines which spray showers of steel over a wide area.

"No Retreat"

If the Rangers are overrun, they will have to retreat over open grass and through rolls of barbed wire before reaching the

Get Used to Asia Crises, U.S. Is Told

By Robert J. Donovan
© The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON, D.C.—As long as the United States plays the role in Asia that it has assumed in the Twentieth Century, Americans had better become accustomed to incidents like the capture of the Pueblo, if not worse.

A new Korean war may yet be averted this time if the North Koreans do not lose all restraint.

The end of the Vietnam war is not in sight, however, and intermittent wars and incidents along the periphery of Asia may well go on for decades before the Far East becomes the kind of stable society that is the ultimate aim of U.S. policy.

World War I so bled the great powers of Europe that their Asian empires were doomed. One of the deepest revolutions in human history swept across the face of Asia.

Still Continues

It still continues with vast force, and the United States as a Pacific power with huge interests in the Far East is inevitably caught up in the ebb and flow.

The Pueblo is only the latest in a series of incidents that stretches back more than a century to the U.S. policy of the "Open Door" in China and Matthew C. Perry's expedition opening Japan to American commerce.

It has been a century of increasing turmoil and instability in Asia—a period that has embraced the Boxer Rebellion, the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-05, the Manchurian war,

Warm Air Tags Behind Rain, Fog

A thunderstorm that began here about 10 p.m. Sunday showered Des Moines with .02 inch of rain and capped a mild, foggy day.

The city was shrouded in fog most of the day and visibility was limited to several blocks by late afternoon. The daytime high temperature here was 40, but the mercury continued to rise with the gradual arrival of a warm front, and the high for the day—55—was recorded at midnight.

Daytime highs around the state ranged from 49 at Council Bluffs to 34 at Spencer and Sioux City.

161 Iowans Died in Viet in '67; Averaged One Every 54 Hours

By Stephen Seipow

One Iowan died in the Vietnam war every 54 hours during 1967.

In all, 161 Iowans died—50 per cent more than in all previous years of the war. Before 1967, the war had claimed 101 Iowa lives.

The first to die in 1967 was David L. Pearson, 20, of Maxwell, he was killed Jan. 5 when hit by small arms fire.

The last to die were Herbert Zinnell, Jr., 19, of Dakota City and Michael E. Antill, 22, of Huxley. Both were killed Dec. 28.

Marine Pfc. Zinnell had arrived in Vietnam only three days earlier—Christmas.

Army Pfc. Antill was killed by a grenade fired by friendly forces.

The youngest to die were five 18-year-olds.

The oldest was Col. D. M. Se-

Neva Nickerson, lives at Sioux City.

Cities, Villages

The dead came from the cities, such as Des Moines and Davenport; Sioux City and Mason City. And they came from the villages, such as Quasqueton (pop. 373) and Lost Nation (pop. 567); Harris (pop. 258) and Garden Grove (pop. 335).

More of them died July 29—the day of an explosion on the aircraft carrier Forrestal—than on any other day.

Six Iowans vanished in the Forrestal blaze, and two more were killed in action at Quang Tri.

With some who have died, the date is not even known. Lt. Cmdr. Rex Wood, 32, of Moulton, was officially declared dead in August, two months after a plane he was aboard plunged into the Vietnam coastal waters.

Said his mother, Mrs. Hugh Wood: "Nothing has ever

FIVE BLAZES IN 16 HOURS SHAKE CITY

Believe All Guests Fled to Safety

(The Register's Iowa News Service)

CLINTON, IA. — Clinton's largest hotel — the Milner-Lafayette — was extensively damaged by fire Sunday afternoon in the latest of a series of blazes that has left the city jittery and fearful.

All 162 people registered at the hotel — a number of whom are elderly and retired — apparently got out safely. One fireman suffered smoke inhalation.

The hotel fire was the fifth in a 16-hour period here and one of a rash that has struck this eastern Iowa community in the last few weeks.

The largest of these occurred Jan. 8 when the main building of Clinton's only public high school was burned to the ground.

Fire Chief Harold Nelson has blamed the high school fire and at least one other on an arsonist. No one has been arrested.

Anxiety, Fear

The sudden outbreak of fires has caused a good deal of anxiety and fear among Clinton residents. Said one citizen: "We have a nut here."

There were no immediate reports on the cause of the hotel fire and no exact estimate on the damage.

The fire apparently started in the basement of the six-story building a little before 3:15 p.m.

Hotel Manager A. C. Trentham said the basement and main floor were severely damaged, all of the rooms had some smoke damage and many suffered water damage.

Trentham said he was alerted to the fire at 3:15 p.m. in the hotel room in which he lives. He said he tried to call the fire department from the switchboard, but it was out of order due to the intense heat.

The fire finally was called in from Marcucci's restaurant across the street.

Taking Bath

A Chicago, Ill., man registered at the hotel said he was taking a bath when police knocked on the door and said the hotel was on fire.

He said he dressed, grabbed

D.M. MARINE DIES IN VIET

Marine: Cpl. Robert James McCarl, 20, of Des Moines, who was wounded on his first tour of duty in Vietnam, was killed Wednesday, 24 days into his second duty tour there.

Corporal McCarl's wife, Donna, was notified Saturday that her husband was killed by a gunshot wound in the chest when hostile fire was directed at the convoy in which he was driving an ammunition truck.

The attack took place near Quang Tri, about four miles from the demilitarized zone.

Notification came from Gen. Leonard F. Chapman, Jr., U.S.M.C. commander. The McCarls live at 4840 Amherst.

Previously, Corporal McCarl had served 11 months in Vietnam, was wounded and received the Purple Heart. He completed that tour in May, 1966.

He was born at Osceola, attended Saydel High School, and enlisted in the Marines when 17.

He served three years, one month and 24 days.

Mrs. McCarl had received three letters Friday from her husband, telling of his truck driving assignment.

Besides his wife, Corporal McCarl is survived by a 10-month-old daughter, Rebecca Lynn; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McCarl, Des Moines; two brothers, Danny and Norman; two sisters, Linda and Donna; and two grandparents, Mrs. Gladys Page, Osceola, and Mrs. Minnie Dohm, Leon.

Watch on the Line: Our Men in Korea

By Bob Poes
THE WESTERN FRONT, KOREA (AP) — "I looked at him lying there dead and didn't feel anything whatever except that he was the enemy and that it could be me lying there instead of him."

Spec. 4/c Paul Purdie of Christopher, Ill., had helped carry away the body after two other soldiers on a sweep looking for intruders spotted the North Korean Thursday and killed him.

Invasion Route

If the North Koreans launch a mass attack against South Korea they will probably use the classic invasion route to the South. The U.S. 2nd Infantry Division guards and patrols the route.

So, the men who would have to stop an invasion most likely would be soldiers like Purdie and his buddy, Spec. 4/c Larry Robbins of Columbus, Ohio, both draftees.

"Don't you worry," said Robbins, "we'll take care of them. We can hold anything they've got over there."

Frisco Hippies in Church Swear-in SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. (AP) — Hippies beat drums and shouted four-letter words during Sunday morning worship at Glide Methodist Memorial Church here.

The hippies — about a dozen of them, all Caucasian — said they were protesting what they called the "hypocrisy of the church." The said they want all churches open 24 hours a day for meditation, music, dancing and eating.

At one point during the sermon a hippie jumped up, shouted two gutter-type, four-letter words and stalked off. While the offering was being taken, another stood up and shouted: "You can't buy God!" Then he snatched a dollar from the collection plate and burned it. No one moved to stop him.

2 MEN HOLD UP D.M. PHARMACY

By Fred Karnes

Two men, one armed with a .45-caliber revolver, robbed Forker Pharmacy, 2505 Forest ave., Sunday morning and fled with $45 in cash and about $150 in narcotics.

Owner Hubert Forker said two men walked in about 9:30 a.m. As one asked for a book of matches, one of the men stepped behind the counter and threw him to the floor, Forker said.

One emptied the cash register and a drawer filled with narcotics, said Forker, while the other fired a shot into the floor and ordered two customers to lie on the floor behind the counter.

Police later recovered the bullet.

Forker said the robbers were both Negroes. One was about five feet, seven inches tall, of medium build, and wore dark clothing and gloves. The other was about five feet, 11 inches tall, and wore an orange sweater.

Witnesses told police the two men drove away in a late model, light colored Cadillac convertible with Missouri license plates.

2 Arraigned In Holdups

Two men who are charged with robbery with aggravation in connection with the Sunday night robberies of two east-side service stations were arraigned Sunday before Municipal Judge Ray Harrison.

He set a $30,000 bond for Lawrence Lee Hildebrand, 28, who said he lives at 1235 Seventh st., on two charges of robbery with aggravation. Bond for Donald Allen Wright, 37, who gave police no address, was set at $10,000 on one charge of robbery with aggravation. Trials for both men were set Feb. 6.

Hildebrand and Wright were charged in the armed robberies of P.V.'s Vickers Service, 1801 E. University ave., and Trax Oil Station No. 2 at 1855 Avenue Frederick M. Hubbell.

IOWA STATE COED FOUND STRANGLED

Death of Ft. Dodge Girl 'Mysterious'

By James Beaumont

The bodies of two girls, one a 20-year-old Fort Dodge student and the other an Iowa State University freshman, were found Sunday along little-traveled Iowa roads about 60 miles apart.

Dead are:

Sheila Rae Harrison, 20, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harrison of Fort Dodge, found shortly after 7 a.m. Sunday in the middle of a blacktop road six miles west of Fort Dodge.

Sheila Jean Collins, 18, an Iowa State freshman from Evanston, Ill., found in the weeds in a ditch along a gravel road near Colo, some 15 miles east of Ames.

Story County Atty. Charles Vanderbur said Miss Collins had been strangled. He said the T-shirt she was wearing was pulled up around her neck but it had not been determined whether she had been sexually molested.

In the other case, an autopsy was being conducted to determine the cause of Miss Harrison's mysterious death. The Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation has been asked to join the investigation, Webster County authorities said.

Miss Collins, described as "the quiet, studious type," had been missing from the Iowa State University campus since Friday.

Miss Collins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Collins, had reported their daughter missing Saturday after she failed to show up at home.

She left Ames about 8:30 p.m. Friday with another unidentified student to hitch-hike to her home in Evanston, Story County, sheriff's authorities said.

The authorities found the body about 2:30 p.m. Sunday after a youngster in the car of Roger Hagle of Nevada saw it and phoned the sheriff's office.

Story County Sheriff J. Ivan Shalley said Miss Collins' partially-clothed body was found with her coat pulled over her.

"The coat was all you could see," he said, adding that a suitcase and purse as well as some of the clothes she had been wearing were thrown over a nearby fence.

The sheriff said he thought the girl had died "some time Friday night." Her body was taken to Steven's Funeral Home in Ames, pending the arrival of her father.

Lived in Dorm

Strike in N.Y.C. Snarls Parking

NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP) — Parking attendants struck garages in Manhattan and the Bronx on Sunday, shutting down more than half the available off-street parking.

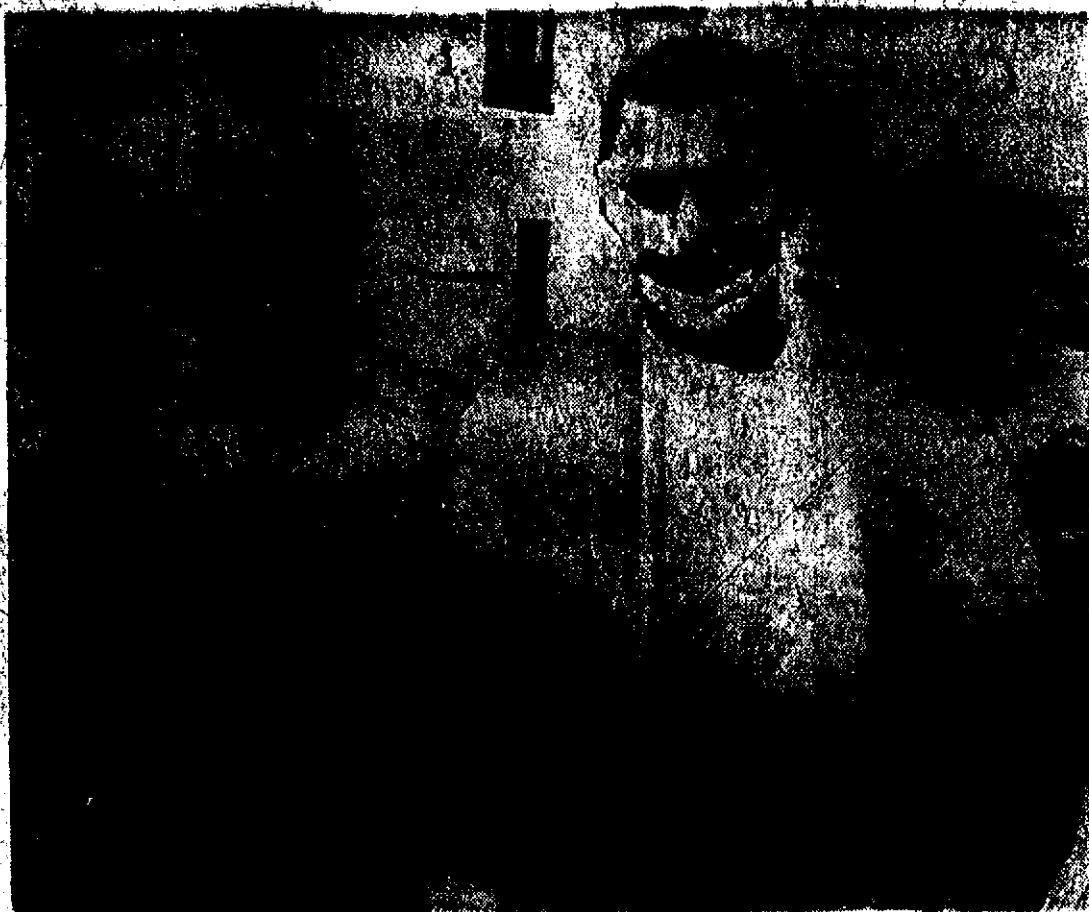

City officials pleaded with motorists to use public transportation rather than try to bring cars into the two struck boroughs today.

The walkout began at one minute after midnight Sunday, and police reported a number of Saturday night theatergoers were locked out of garages when they tried to get their cars.

The strike is by 3,500 members of the Teamsters Garage Employees Union, who rejected a proposed contract Saturday, closing 650 public and apartment house garages, with space for about 125,000 vehicles.

The garage men rejected a wage increase of $17.50 a week over a three-year period, and a 42¢ a week increase.

'I'M INNOCENT,' SPOCK AVERS

© The Washington Post

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Dr. Benjamin Spock and the Rev. William Sloane Coffin, Jr., said Sunday that they will defend themselves along "any lines that are necessary" at their forthcoming trial for draft law violations. "I think I am innocent and I think the young men who are resisting the draft are innocent and patriotic and courageous," Dr. Spock, the 64-year-old pediatrician, said on "Meet the Press," the NBC television program.

If convicted he could get five years and a $100,000 fine.

Later Sunday night, Spock spoke in Boston, Mass., to a crowd of 2,000 at Northeastern University and said of President Johnson: "I've come to despise Lyndon Johnson more than I thought I could despise anybody, at least since World War II."

"But in one respect I admire Lyndon Johnson — he is indefatigable, he never gets discouraged," Spock said, adding that if the peace movement showed the same tenacity, "we would have stopped this war by now."

On the TV program, Spock and Coffin, 43, the Yale University chaplain, insisted they did not advocate wholesale violation of the country's laws, but that they considered the Vietnam war an illegal war being waged under presidential authority rather than congressional authorization.

"Man's conscience is higher than the state," Coffin said.

Spock said the war had no legal basis and that "the United States started trouble by making a power grab in South Vietnam by installing a puppet dictator."

Spock, Coffin and three other defendants are scheduled to appear in Boston's federal court today to answer the charges and set a trial date.

The indictment accuses them of conspiring to aid draft-law violations by draft-eligible young men, principally in a Justice Department demonstration Oct. 20 at which 357 draft cards were turned in.

It was understood that the television appearance was made contrary to the advice of counsel.

May Immunize For Birth Control

Leased Wire to The Register

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA — An American expert on the birth control pill predicted here Sunday that women will be able to have themselves immunized against pregnancy within a few years.

Prof. Nichols Vorys, of Ohio State University Hospital said that immunization has proved effective for up to eight months on baboons being used in American research.

"The process involves immunizing a woman against her own hormones, like we immunize people against smallpox," he said.

and was an English and speech major.

Webster County Sheriff Ray McCoy said Miss Harrison and an acquaintance, Ora Buel Witt, Jr., 23, a salesman who lives in Des Moines, were riding in Witt's car which skidded as they pulled onto the highway just north of Tara.

In backing up to straighten out, Witt pulled the car off the road and it became stuck in a ditch, McCoy said. The sheriff said Witt admitted to being "pretty drunk" at the time.

Sheriff McCoy said the girl left the car to get help, walking east. But she returned in about 15 minutes and told Witt she couldn't arouse anyone.

Then she apparently took a flashlight and started walking west along the blacktop, the sheriff said.

Miss Harrison's body was discovered one-fifth of a mile from Witt's car at about 7:10 a.m. by a passing motorist, who called the sheriff.

Her body, which was lying face down across the highway's center line, was still warm when the ambulance arrived, the sheriff said.

Funeral services for Miss Harrison are being arranged at the Bruce Funeral Home in Fort Dodge. In addition to her parents she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Fred Williams of Fort Dodge and Lila Harrison at home.

although there was frost covering the black top, McCoy said.

Face Bruises

The sheriff said there were no marks on the Harrison girl's body except for some bruises on her face.

Sheriff's authorities found Witt in his car. He told them he had fallen asleep and was not sure how long the Harrison girl had been gone.

Witt was released Sunday morning after being questioned by Webster County sheriff authorities.

Miss Harrison was a senior in the continuation school at Fort Dodge Senior High School.
