Methodists reaffirm stance on homosexuality

Iowa delegate to national convention holds hope for more inclusive position in future

By Keith E. Gottschalk The Gazette

The 8.3 million-member United Methodist Church wrapped up its two-week General Convention on Friday in Pittsburgh by reaffirming church teaching on homosexuality, despite efforts by liberals among the nearly 1,000 delegates for a more inclusive posture.

Iowa delegates found themselves in the middle of the debates over same-sex marriage, the ordination of gay clergy and funding of gay and lesbian activism.

"I went there particularly con-

Vilsack

calls for reforms

sentencing

Case of abused wife brings up question of mandatory guidelines

mandatory criminal sentenc-changes that make sense.

ing and instead work on

"It's time for both parties to put the swords away and basically suggest that crime and those issues are sort of off the table in terms of poli-

The issue of the state's sentencing laws arose Monday

when District Judge Charles

Smith said during a hearing that the mandatory guidelines set in 1997 were wrong.

He said lawmakers removed judges' discretion and consideration of mitigating factors in cases such as Dixie

Shanahan, who killed her husband in August 2002 and stored his decomposing body in a bedroom in the family home for more than a year.

killed her husband in self-defense because he threatened to kill her and her un-

Smith was critical of the 36-year-old Defiance woman to serve, which will require her to serve at least 35 years of a 50-year sentence before

Vilsack would not comment

specifically on the Shanahan case because he said he could be asked to consider a pardon

or commutation of her sen-

Vilsack, who has supported mandatory sentences in the past, said criminals who injure others must be held accountable but that mandatory terms may not be as effective

DEATH NOTICES AND OBITUARIES

can be submitted to The Gazette between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Monday through Friday, 3 to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and 4 to 7 p.m. on holidays. Daily submissions must be made by death notices, including immediate survivors, and a photo of the deceased are published as a news item on this page. These notices must conform to Gazette style and sequence or the item is subjected to the per-cluding additional survivors, employment, education, military service, civic and social activities, accomplishments, special interests and hobbies, friends, pets, memorials and eulogies will be published for and other deaths (formerly out-of-town) will be published at 35

deceased's involvement in various organizations are available at $10 each. Up to three symbols may be used per obitfor help in preparing an obituary. For further information about The Gazette's guidelines

See your funeral director

Second-day funeral notices

Emblems to accentuate the 35 cents per word.

cents per word.

call 398-8221.

Other obituary material, in-word charge

Arrangements pending and

Death notices and obituaries

in non-violent cases.

being eligible for parole.

born child.

Shanahan testified that she tics," Vilsack said.

cerned as to where the church was going with the homosexual issue, and that was a frustrating part of the two weeks," said the Rev. Kathleen Moore, an alternate delegate from St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 1340 Third Ave. SE in Cedar Rapids.

Church conservatives won every vote taken on homosexual issues, reaffirming the United Methodist Church positions taken in previous General Conferences that homosexual practice is "incompatible" with Christian teaching.

"My greatest disappointment is faithful Christians can disagree on the issue of homosexuality," Moore said. "We lost that vote by a narrower margin than four years ago, which makes me hopeful."

Despite the disagreements, a suggestion by the Rev. Bill Hinson, a leader of the conservative Confessing Movement in the Methodist Church, that the two sides part ways was rejected out of hand.

Philip Carver, associate council director of the church's Iowa Annual Conference and a lay delegate from Coralville, played down divisions over the homosexual issue, noting that the final unity statement released by the nearly 1,000 delegates at the end of the conference confirmed the church as a single

"I think our unity statement says it all," Carver said. "My sense is that the mission and ministry is broader than any single issue. We'll always have problems to address, but my hope is that the covenant of our relationship together that's lasted 200 years will continue to help us serve faithfully as God leads us."

Carver said the homosexual issue overshadowed positive votes for additional funding to the church's disaster relief efforts, creating a new division of ministry aimed at young people, and appropriating additional money to build missions and churches in Africa and train more people for leadership in mis-

Despite setbacks on gay and lesbian issues she supported. Moore is hopeful that conservatives will eventually reconcile their stances with society's changing attitudes toward homosexuality. She said the liberals were not going away.

"It seems to many of us that Hinson and others are trying to push the liberal wing out of United Methodism, that we'll give up and say, 'OK, we'll start another church,'" Moore said. "We have no intention of doing that."

■ Contact the writer: (319) 398-8288 or keith.gottschalk @gazettecommunications.com

RECOGNITION

lowa honors fallen officers

Des Moines ceremony set to coincide with National Police Week

DES MOINES (AP) — As bagpipes played "Amazing Grace," Gov. Tom Vilsack and Department of Public Safety Commissioner Kevin Techau on Tuesday honored DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Tom Vilsack said Tuesday the 128 Iowa police officers who have died and to recogthat lawmakers need to take nize those who continue to politics out of the debate over

Vilsack and Techau placed a wreath at the Iowa Peace Officers Memorial during a ceremony, set to coincide with National Police Week.

'Our democracy is strong and free because we have men and women who are willing to put their life on the line every single day," he said. "So the rest of us could go about our business without having to think about whether or not it is a dangerous world."

Vilsack said the ceremony "gives us the opportunity to reflect and to remember and also to say thank you.'

About 50 officers from various agencies and the Iowa Law Enforcement Academy stood at attention throughout the solemn ceremony, held at the memorial east of the Cap-

About 150 people attended the ceremony, which included a 21-gun salute and a lone bugler playing "Taps."

"With a strange mixture of sorrow and pride we pause sentence he had to give the from the busyness of life and remember that these servants of society gave more than they should have had to give," Iowa State Patrol Chaplain Michael Roberts said.

While no officers were Washington on Thursday,

With sword raised, Lt. Doug Mollenhauer of the Iowa State Patrol takes part in a ceremony at the lowa Peace Officers Memorial on Tuesday on the state Capitol complex in Des Moines.

Iowans are among 362 fallen officers whose names will be added to the National Law Enforcement Memorial in killed in Iowa last year, six They include Dennis Wapello County reserve offi-McElderry, a deputy with the Davis County Sheriff's Department, who died on Jan. 3, McElderry was struck by a lowans honored

Six officers will be added to the National Law Enforcement Memorial in Washington, D.C., on Thursday. They are:

■ Newton Fred Collings, 41, Union County Sheriff, died March 9, 1926. He was shot while informing a landowner that property would be taken under imminent domain.

Dennis McElderry, 45, a deputy with the Davis County Sheriff's Department, who died on Jan. 3, 2003. He was struck by a Wapello County reserve officer's car while placing road spikes on a highway during a high-speed chase near Bloomfield.

Jacob Neibert, 42, a Muscatine police officer, died on June 13, 1896. He was shot while arresting two suspects for vagrancy.

■ Charles C. Platner, 49, died Sept. 3, 1905. He was accidentally shot when his partner's gun fell from its holster and discharged during a foot pursuit of burglary suspects.

■ Virgil Untied, 33, a night marshal with the Minburn Police Department, who died on July 27, 1931. He was shot while attempting to arrest three people robbing a local grocery store. The suspects were never apprehended.

■ George Wilson, 50, a detective with the Council Bluffs Police Department, died on July 9, 1907. He was shot while searching for a suspect who had just shot another officer.

Source: Associated Press and the non-profit Officer Down Memorial cer's car while placing road spikes on a highway during a high-speed chase near Bloom-

Out-of-wedlock births increase again in Iowa

The Gazette

Out-of-DES MOINES wedlock births in Iowa increased for the sixth straight year in 2002, with nearly a third of the 37,555 babies being born to unwed parents, according to the latest vital statistics report issued by the state Department of Public

The 11,020 out-of-wedlock births marked the 26th time in 28 years that the figure has increased, dating back to 1974 when the number stood at 2,959. State data indicates the out-of-wedlock rate represented 293.4 per 1,000 live births in Iowa in 2002.

Health Department spokesman Kevin Teale said Iowa's figures mirror a national report issued this week in which births to unmarried women averaged about one out of every three deliveries

"That rate has gone up just about in every single state since 1990," Teale said.

Teale said it is difficult for public health officials to draw any conclusions or assumptions from the numbers without a deeper examination of the underlying circumstanc-

"Simply being born out of wedlock is not an immediate indication that there are health problems or something that society should be con-cerned about," he said. "Children can be born out of wedlock and be in a very stable family situation as well as children born in wedlock could be in a very unstable situation.'

Much of the 2002 data contained in the latest Iowa vital statistics report was issued in preliminary form last fall. Iowa saw a 13,760-person population rise after a slight dip in 2001. Live births declined by 55 while deaths increased by 187, with the leading cause of death being heart disease.

The number of Iowans getting married and filing for divorce declined in 2002. The oldest groom was 92, while the youngest was 16, according to state records. Likewise, the oldest bride in 2002 was 95 and the youngest was 16.

The oldest divorcees were 91 for men and 92 for women and the longest-duration marriage that ended in divorce in 2002 had lasted 56 years. The youngest man getting a divorce was aged 18 while the youngest female terminating a marriage was 16.

The oldest father in 2002 was 70 years old, while the oldest mother was 48. The youngest father was 14 and the youngest mother was 13. The lowest recorded birth weight was 6 ounces, or 200 grams, while the largest baby weighed in at 13 pounds even.

The oldest Iowa man to die in 2002 was 109 years old, while the oldest female was aged 112 at the time of her

■ Contact the writer: (515) 243-7220 or

Intermodal facility may cut grain truck congestion in C.R.

The Gazette

Plans for a new truck-torail intermodal facility on the Iowa Northern Railroad in Butler County could mean fewer grain trucks clogging Cedar Rapids streets.

Shear Elevator Inc. plans to construct a facility for unloading and loading bulk materials

C.R.o

near Clarksville in Butler County. project's sponsors say it will offer corn producers in northern Iowa an economical alternative to trucking their grain to Archer Daniels Midland in Cedar Rapids, saving 3 cents to 5 cents per bushel.

The Iowa Transportation Commission approved a $271,000 loan from the state's Intermodal Pilot Project Program on Tuesday to help finance the rail portion of the project.

"This will keep some more trucks out of Cedar Rapids, which is a good thing because there's quite a bit of congestion," said Peggy Baer, director of the Office of Rail Transportation in the Iowa Department of Transportation.

congestion in Cedar Rapids, the project is expected to reduce the fuel used in transporting grain to market by 48,000 gallons annu-

Although the facility will be operated by Shear Elevator, Baer said the intermodal facility will be open to all grain shippers.

Although grain will be the primary commodity moving through the facility, it will also be able to handle other bulk commod-

The $271,000 loan at an annual interest rate of 2 percent will have a 10-year repayment period.

Iowa Northern Railroad, a Class III railroad, is based in Greene.

It runs in a southeasterly direction from Manley to Cedar Rapids, where it interchanges with the Union Pacific, Canadian National and CRANDIC railroads. ADM manufactures highfructose corn syrup and ethanol in Cedar Rapids.

■ Contact the writer: (319) 398-8317 @gazettecommunications.com

IOWA NEWS

New York gay rights group joins lowa gay divorce case

DES MOINES - A prominent New York-based gay rights group and the American Civil Liberties Union have asked the Iowa Supreme Court to uphold a divorce granted by an Iowa judge to a lesbian couple.

The Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund filed its friend-of-the-court brief Mon-

The state's high court in February agreed to review a divorce decree granted last November by Woodbury County District Judge Jeffrey Neary to two Sioux City women. Neary later reworded the decree to refer to civil union instead of marriage.

Rep. Steve King, R-Iowa, six state lawmakers and an Iowa church had appealed Neary's ruling, arguing that he overstepped his authority because Iowa law does not recognize gay marriage.

The Iowa Supreme Court has not set a date to hear arguments in the case.

Drunken driver given a 15-year sentence

DES MOINES - A Polk County judge has sentenced Donald Corwin of Ankeny to 15 years in prison for the latest of five alcohol- and driving-related crimes and required a $1 million bond to free the man if he appeals.

Corwin, 54, was convicted last month of drunken driving and being a habitual violator of state laws. His history includes three other drunken-driving convictions and a fourth in 1996 for alcohol-related vehicular homi-

John Hallengren, father of 19-year-old Heather Hallengren, who was killed during a 1996 collision with Corwin, said he was pleased with the sentence but still believes Iowa's drunken-driving laws are inadequate.

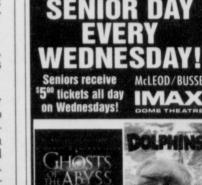

Virtual School to end due to lack of funds

FORT DODGE - After one year of operation, Iowa's Virtual School Program will end.

The Pocahontas School Board voted Monday to end the program due to a lack of funding. The state classified the program as home school assistance rather than a regular education program. That meant a 42 percent cut in state funding.

To keep the program going, class sizes next year would have had to be reduced from six to four, said Mike Wright, superintendent of the Pocahontas and Laurens-Marathon School District.

About 32 students participated in the virtual school. Associated Press

Call for Showtimes! 427 1st St. SE, Cedar Rapids 319-363-IMAX www.sciencestation.org