Planners Vote To Study Road Noise Effects

The Cedar Rapids planning commission recommended Thursday that the city council proceed with a study of interstate 380 through Cedar Rapids that would give special consideration to effects of noise on residential areas.

The principal purpose of the study is to estimate noise levels that will be generated by the traffic," said Donald Salyer, director of planning and redevelopment. He added that a follow-up to the study will be to determine ways the noise levels can be reduced where they are detrimental to adjacent residential property.

Searchers for Missing Woman Find No Trace

Linn county sheriff's deputies Friday morning failed to turn up any trace of Lynn Louise Schuller, who apparently disappeared Sunday from her residence at 3100 Thirtieth street drive SE.

About 50 special deputies-law enforcement officers, Civil Air Patrol members and civilian volunteers - searched an area of about a square mile east of the Schuller house. Sheriff Walter Grant said the search was concentrated in this particular area because of its close proximity to a route Mrs. Schuller reportedly planned to take to a market Sunday.

forces made sapper and shelling attacks on two strategic South Vietnamese positions Friday and battered government forces in Quang Tri with hundreds of artillery rounds.

Just before dawn, sappers covered by a 40-round rocket and mortar barrage struck at the Lai Khe camp 30 miles north of Saigon, a major tactical headquarters for operations in the 3rd military region.

Field reports said the enemy force was decimated, and 35 bodies were found at daylight. Sources said an enemy lieutenant defected and told the South Vietnamese of the attack two days in advance.

Two South Vietnamese were reported killed and 28 wounded. South Vietnamese bombers attacked the enemy launching sites just west of the base, and pilots said they destroyed at least one mortar position.

Interrogators said the defector told them the object of the attack was to disrupt the supply lines to the government forces fighting to open Highway 13 to An Loc, 30 miles above Lai Khe.

Sindelar Faces Forgery Counts

Robert J. Sindelar, 19, of 1006 Dover street NE, was arrested by Cedar Rapids police Thursday on two warrants charging him with forgery.

A warrant issued by Hiawatha Mayor Dale Guthridge charged Sindelar forged four checks Aug. 7-9 for a total of $605. The checks were stolen from Keith's DX service station of Hiawatha, officials said, and were signed in the name of Keith Wilson.

A true information was filed by the county attorney's office charging Sindelar wrote a check in the amount of $160.70 to Bob LeClaire April 24 and signed it Mike Raymond.

Sindelar was released from the Linn county jail Friday upon posting $1,000 bond on the Hiawatha warrant. He was arraigned in Linn district court and released on his own recognizance on the county attorney's charge.

He told officers he and the couple's young son left the house early Sunday to go fishing. Mrs. Schuller was absent when they returned about 12:30 p.m. Her bicycle also was missing.

Schuller said he and the boy left again, but returned a short time later to find the bicycle lying on its side in the front yard. Mrs. Schuller has not been seen since.

Mrs. Schuller is five feet, five inches tall, weighs 120 pounds and has red hair, brown eyes and a light complexion. She wears brown horn-rimmed glasses.

Mrs. Schuller was arrested by Cedar Rapids police Thursday on a municipal court warrant charging he permitted or encouraged immoral conduct by a minor child Aug. 5.

Planners Vote To Study Road Noise Effects

The Cedar Rapids planning commission recommended Thursday that the city council proceed with a study of interstate 380 through Cedar Rapids that would give special consideration to effects of noise on residential areas.

The principal purpose of the study is to estimate noise levels that will be generated by the traffic," said Donald Salyer, director of planning and redevelopment. He added that a follow-up to the study will be to determine ways the noise levels can be reduced where they are detrimental to adjacent residential property.

ISU Institute

The study will be conducted by the engineering research institute at Iowa State university C. E. Dare, assistant professor of civil engineering, and R. L. Carstens, professor of the university's department of civil engineering, will direct the study.

Salyer estimated that if the city council approves the proposed study next week, a final report on expected noise levels could be finished by the end of this year.

He said the study is part of increasing emphasis at federal level on developing highways that would blend in with the areas they pass through.

After Highway

Salyer pointed out that the study is based on data designed to show what the situation will be after the highway is built. "The study assumes the highway is in place and already constructed with traffic moving along it," he said.

Once the noise levels are determined and related to tolerable levels, Salyer said, the report will suggest ways to diminish the noise, such as through creation of buffer zones of park land or installation of air-conditioning in buildings close to the highway.

Youth

hotels and for most of their meals. They will fly here on chartered aircraft.

During their walking hours, the young people are to congregate at a yet-to-be-designated Miami Beach holding area.

Two groups of 1,200 will work four-hour shifts on convention-related activities, he said, while those who aren't assigned to jobs will remain at the site listening to speakers and working at such odd jobs as blowing up balloons and making posters.

"If the President calls and says, 'I need 500 kids at a press conference,' we can get them there in 20 minutes," Nostrand said.

In addition, the 3,000 are scheduled to attend a youth appreciation dinner with cabinet members and congressmen; a platform committee presentation by the chairman, Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona; a presidential nomination rally; and to stage a convention victory party for the 3,000 delegates and alternates.

Nostrand said the youth-invasion plan was developed 16 months ago in Washington by Sen. William E. Brock of Tennessee; Bill Timmons, a special assistant to the President, and Ken Reitz and Tom Bell, the chairman and assistant chairman of the national young voters group.

Nostrand, 27, of Boca Raton, Fla., said he took a leave of absence from the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce to help organize the program under the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Ireland

In Londonderry two youths slipped through the tight army cordon around the city center and set off bombs in a bus station, a shop and car showrooms. No one was injured, but the blast further damaged the already blitzed shopping area.

Snipers in Belfast wounded two soldiers, neither seriously, in separate incidents. Catholic and Protestant gangs also stoned police and troops in Lurgan and several districts of Belfast.

"We're giving the President a blank check for no one knows how long into the future to continue the war," said Rep. Donald W. Riegle (R-Mich.) when it became clear the mandate would be rejected. "We have a right to ask the President to change his terms."

Rep. Andrew Jacobs, jr., (D-Ind.) said congress must impose prompt war-pullout terms on the President because "the secret plan of the administration to end this war turned out to be a bomb."

The search of the area between the Schuller residence at 3100 Thirtieth street drive SE and East Post road failed to turn up any trace of the missing woman. Mrs. Schuller has not been seen since Sunday.

The area is wooded with heavy undergrowth. Searchers moved on a line west from East Post road SE for about a mile, then pivoted north.

Searchers later covered an area south of the starting point, but again found nothing.

One Linn official said the search has "about exhausted" all leads in the case, adding, "About all we can do now is wait and hope something turns up."

The special deputies were advised to be alert for freshly-turned earth, broken branches, piles of wilting weeds or brush, and traces of the clothing Mrs. Schuller was wearing when last seen.

The area being searched is about a half-mile from the Schuller residence.

Reported Monday Mrs. Schuller's husband, Keith, contacted officials Monday to report her disappearance.
